Barcelona, 6 November 2025. The European Commission and Fundació Mies van der Rohe are pleased to announce the nominees and the jury for the 2026 edition of the European Union Prize for Contemporary Architecture / Mies van der Rohe Awards (EUMies Awards), the most prestigious recognition of contemporary architecture in Europe.

This 19th cycle of the Prize, with the support of the European Union's Creative Europe Programme, brings together 410 works from 40 countries and 143 regions, reflecting the diversity, creativity, and richness of Europe's architectural landscape. Submitted by a broad network of national architectural associations, independent experts, and the Advisory Committee, the nominations showcase the most significant built works completed between May 2023 and April 2025.

From this list, the jury will identify a shortlist of 40 outstanding projects which will be announced in January 2026, narrowing it down to seven finalists the following month. In spring 2026, jury members will visit the sites of the finalists, engaging directly with architects, clients, users, and local communities. The winners in the Architecture and Emerging Architecture categories will then be unveiled in Oulu — one of the two 2026 European Capitals of Culture — in April 2026, celebrating projects that define the future of European architecture.

"Architecture is not merely a technical or aesthetic matter – it is a cultural, environmental, and democratic issue. It reflects our shared European values such as cultural diversity, sustainability, democracy, and solidarity"

Normunds Popens, Deputy Director-General at the Directorate-General for Education, Youth, Sport and Culture of the European Commission

"The EUMIES Awards 2026 celebrate the best of European architecture, a shared project that reflects our continent's creativity, innovation, and commitment to a sustainable present. In the special context of Barcelona as World Capital of Architecture, we are honoured to provide a stage where Europe's architectural excellence involves everybody." Laia Bonet, President of the Fundació Mies van der Rohe and Deputy Mayor of Barcelona City Council

Background

Initiated in 1988, the Prize is awarded by the European Commission and Fundació Mies van der Rohe. It recognises excellence, innovation, and sustainability in architecture, and highlights the transformative power of design in shaping Europe's environment and society. Since 2016, the Prize also includes the Young Talent category, which celebrates the best graduation projects from architecture schools in Europe and beyond. The "Architecture & Emerging" categories proceed together in one jury process, while a separate independent jury reviews the "Young Talent" category.

All the works participating in the EUMies Awards Architecture & Emerging are nominated by European independent experts, the national architecture associations and the Prize Advisory Committee.

The Architecture Winner receives €60,000 and the Emerging Winner €30,000, both accompanied by sculptures specially designed to symbolise the Mies van der Rohe Pavilion. Finalists and clients are also recognised with dedicated awards.

The Prize's reach extends globally through exhibitions, debates, and publications and the EUMies Awards Archive, making the EUMies Awards a unique platform for exchange between architects, institutions, and citizens.

Creative Europe is the European Commission's framework programme for support to the cultural and audiovisual sectors. Creative Europe invests in actions that reinforce cultural diversity and respond to the needs and challenges of the cultural and creative sectors. The main objectives of the programme are to safeguard, develop, and promote European cultural and linguistic diversity and heritage, and to increase the competitiveness and economic potential of the cultural and creative sectors, in particular the audiovisual sector.

Fundació Mies van der Rohe fosters debate on and awareness of themes related to contemporary architecture and urban planning, as well as encouraging studies on the work of Ludwig Mies van der Rohe, Lilly Reich, the Modern Movement and Contemporary Architecture.

Prize

The Architecture Winner receives €60,000 and a sculpture by Xavier Corberó that evokes the Mies van der Rohe Pavilion of Barcelona. The Emerging Winner receives €30,000 together with the sculpture. The finalists and the clients receive a sculpture by Tomoko Sakamoto, recognising their indispensable contribution to contemporary architecture.

The EUMies Awards draw the map of the best European Contemporary Architecture with the Architecture Winner, the Emerging Winner, and the Young Talent Winners. The prestige of the Prize and the dissemination of the knowledge and savoir-faire of European architects is further enhanced with the organisation of exhibitions and debates worldwide, bringing architecture nearer to citizens.

All these works can be found in the online archive, which counts with 6,504 works.
