EXHIBITION

(international, juried with awards, open call)

Established in 2016, the MicroMacro awards are dedicated to the recognition of design solutions in innovative ways that successfully implement new standards in architecture and urban design and planning and encourage environmental sustainability.

Naming of the MicroMacro award refers to various scales of recognized projects and programs – from micro as furniture and object design, urban design, exhibition design, and interior architecture to macro as public art, urban planning, architecture, building information modeling and software architecture.

PANEL

(international, peer-reviewed, open call)

Interplay and Contradictions of Education, Research, and Production

We aim to reveal common occurrences and tendencies of the contemporary disciplinary setting, academic and professional, within the dominant system in education and market production, in which many of us play a part. How does a particular actor perceive their role and these relationships, and is there a way to transcend the chain of circumstances and imagine what may be possible instead?

Convener: Dr Aleksa Bijelovic, Senior Lecturer, School of Design and the Built Environment, Curtin University, Western Australia

STUDENT EXHIBITION

(undergraduate students, invite only)

OA2025 is featuring the exhibition where students can present their research topics in a form of short concept for valuable peer feedback and collaborative criticism.

Coordinator: Dr Nora Lefa, Associate Professor, University of Ioannina, Greece.
